Woman is the tangled web that obstructs men in the sack race of life, and it was some fair daughter of Eve, known only to Detective McMahon, that placed Francis behind the bars at the Second Station. That is, he might have eventually been caught by the detective, but a message to his beloved expedited matters considerably. The tale of the capture and the crotic message runs capture and the crotic message runs (as it).

But Francis wasn't visible to cither the boy or the oral, Meantime, Detective McMahon had proceeded thitherwards, and by the time the couple arrived single file, had learned a whole lot that was not wholesome for Francis, should he be still in the city.

The officer of the law was quizzing the hartender at the time, and Francis passed through the restaurant. He was told that there was a man, waiting to see him. The bint of a visitor was sufficient for the man, and he lit out of the Bank. Without waiting for an explanation, the officer hurried out after Francis, and came up with him at the corner of Tonth and Bank Streets. He afterwards contessed that he was going to leave the city without his pir one. He was taken back to his room in the hotel and searched, and nearly all of the money was recovered.

It was learned by the detective that Francis had hired a buggy from T. B. Hicks, which was to report at the hotel at 10:45. Thence, no doubt, he intended to drive to Third and Grace to meet his fellow fair cloper, thence to take a train mway from town. The note sent to Pettit's reads as follows: "Dear, meet me at Grace and Third Streets at 11 o'clock, Do not fail. (Signed) J."

Free Bridge Ordinance to Be Inspected by City. Attorney.

TONEY IS SURE OF ELECTION

Mr. Page Says One Vote is Sufficient for Him Next Tuesday. Council To-night-Personals.

Manchester Bureau, Times-Dispatch, No. 1112 Hull Street.

The Ordinance Committee of the Council last night considered the ordinance providing for the issuance of bonds to the amount of $250,000 for the building of a free bridge on the Mayo's bridge site. After being in session for about an hour, the committee referred the ordinance to the City Attorney for his opinion regarding its legality and the feasibillty of the scheme. the Council.

"He is the only candidate of the six who are running, who filed notice that he was running for the unexpired term in the Assembly, and for this reason he will have to receive only one vote to be elected," said the city attorney.

Mr. Toney, therefore, occupies a unique position in the political world of the city. He was chosen by the joint session of the Council to fill the unexpired term of Mr. A. J. Daffron, who moved from the Second Ward. Mr. Daffron held the long term, and was therefore entitled to his seat in the Assembly for two more years. Messrs. B. A. Nuinnally and C. L. Pettit held the short terms and their terms in office expired with this election. Both are running for re-election. And along with them are Messrs, Welsh, Campbell and Gallalgher. But neither of these filed a notice with Clerk Duval that he was a candidate for the unexpired term. And Mr. Toney placed this notice in his application. Thereby hangs the tal.

After shooting Banks, Robinson made off countywards, in the direction of the Mechanicsville Turnpike. He cluded pursuit successfully, and was on a fair road to getting away completely when a farmer, who saw him cross the road below the city, made known the fact to Serthe city, made known the fact to Sei geant Tyler, who met the white man or of Fairmount, where the road was taken behind the fleeing darkey.

Several Close Calls.

Sergeant Tyler detailed the officer accompanying him to go out further to the north and cut the man off in case he attempted to cross the railroad track in that region. He himself footed it lightly up the turnpike. It was not long before he came in sight of the man Robinson, who looking behind and discovering his future captor hot on his trail, renewed his forward flight.

Four times Sergeant Tyler fired at the man as the distance between horse and man decreased gradually and swiftly. Every one of them told, and when the negro was seen by the reporter at the First Station the night of the capture, he was enthusiastic in asserting that the "leesman dat shot him was de goods, shore enough, and de best in de country." One bullet-hole appeared in Robinson's cap, one bullet passed through his overalls, where they pass over the shoulder, and a third passed under his arm. Just then Mug got shy of the whizzing balls,, and, looking in the rear and seeing a leveled pistol, he ducked. It was a good thing he did, for the ball passed down his back, tearing the shirt and underclothing away entirely, and burning the flesh. An order to halt was obeyed by the hypnotized negro, and, upon the approach of the sergeant on foot, he held up his hands. Sergeant Tyler had six empty cartridges in his big six-shooter. ## NEGRO CAUGHT WITH THE GOODS ON HIM

Detective McMahon Learns That James Brown, in Washington, Is Man He Wants.

After getting away good and sure from the county where he stole the goods Wednesday night, James Brown, a negro thief and general crook, was apprehended by the Washington police yesterday morning as he stepped from the train on the charge of being a mighty suspicious looking character. An investigation of his pockets and linings of his coat and trousers brought to light the presence of a numerous lot of miscellaneous pawn tickets, and gold article of ornamental value, the former of which bore the indelible mark of various and sundry pawn shops in Richmond.

of ornamental value, the former of which bore the indefible mark of various and sundry pawn shops in Richmond.

Chief Siyvester, of the Washington police, immediately telephoned Chief Werner, giving a detailed description of the stolen articles. Detective Thomas J. McMahon had been at work on the case since early morning, and a glace at the Washington information made him certain that Brown was the man he wanted for a robery committed on the dwelling of Mr. A. J. Knef, in Chestnut Hill, the night before. The case number of the watch was the same, and the initials on the watch charm were identical. Detective McMahon immediately notified the Washington police to hold the negro for burglary. The Henrico authorities have been communicated with, and the man will very probably be brought back to-day.

Mr. Knef, who lives at No. 301 Third Avenue, on Chestnut Hill, reported the robbery to police headquarters at once, stating that a fine gold watch, with fob and charm, with the initials A. J. K. on it, together with three coats, two pair trousers, a smoking jacket, and a check in one of the pockets, made payable to Chapin & Hume, for $22. Detective McMahon went out on the case. The articles found on Brown fally in every respect with those reported by Mr. Knef.

Must Help Each Other.
"We must work for one another. The greatest compensation that the workers of the Royal Arcanum can get is the look, of gratitude from the eyes of he from whom the burden has been lifted." Dr. A. G. Brown was chalrman of the entertainment committee, and after Mr. Blekers's speech, the Polk Miller Quartette sang and played to the delight of its audience, and Mr. Miller brought poars of apphase by the relation of local stories.

After this several more orators gave the word of good cheer. At 11 o'clock refreshments were served and a general good time induged in.
